The range of recruitment drives ensured that students from a variety of academic backgrounds had ample opportunities to explore career paths that matched their interests and qualifications.

RESOLVED to approve and record the significant activities of the office of the Campus to Corporate during the academic year 2023-24.

58.12.2 Research & Development

Dr. P. Chandrakumar, Dean (R&D) presented a brief summary of the activities for the year 2023-24. He reported that the institution had 1,622 publications indexed in Scopus and 519 in the Web of Science. In terms of patents, a total of 31 were filed, 29 were published, and 25 were granted during this period. Regarding seed funding for faculty members for the fiscal year 2023-24, the institution had a top-up fund of Rs. 22.71 lakh, with Rs. 18.26 lakh disbursed from a seed fund of Rs. 30.52 lakh. Looking ahead to research development funds for the fiscal year 2024-25, a sanctioned amount of Rs. 50 lakh was allocated for 75 faculty members.

In terms of consultancy activities during the fiscal year 2023-24, there were 32 consultations, generating Rs. 48,45,262 in revenue. Additionally, sponsored research projects for the same period included 14 newly sanctioned projects and 24 ongoing projects, with a total of Rs. 1.28 lakh received from various funding agencies. Dean Chandrakumar also mentioned the incentives provided for projects, patents, publications, and consultancy. The incentives included Rs. 7.72 lakh for sponsored projects, Rs. 3.94 lakh for patents, Rs. 33.77 lakh for publications, and Rs. 7.93 lakh for consultancy.

Prof. S.P.Thyagarajan emphasized the importance of creating an environment where faculty are encouraged to pursue innovative research. This could be achieved through recognition programs, incentives for outstanding projects, and providing resources that facilitate research activities. Another key suggestion was to actively promote and nurture research project talent among faculty members. He also suggested for a systematic approach to identifying and developing research potential within the institution. This would involve using data-driven methods to assess the strengths and weaknesses of current research programs and identify areas for growth.

A comprehensive assessment would help determine which faculty members or research teams are best suited to pursue specific projects and guide them in developing their research agenda. To further support faculty in their research endeavors, Prof. S.P. Thyagarajan recommended forming school-level mentoring committees. These committees would consist of both internal faculty members and external experts from various fields. The external experts would bring fresh perspectives and industry knowledge. These committees would provide guidance, mentorship, and constructive feedback to faculty working on research projects.

As a final suggestion, Prof.S.P.Thyagarajan proposed to organize group discussions to foster collaboration and idea exchange among faculty and researchers. These discussions would serve as a platform for brainstorming, sharing experiences, and building interdisciplinary connections. Prof. B.S. Murty emphasized the importance of selecting mentors who possess deep domain knowledge in their respective fields. These mentors should have extensive experience and expertise, allowing them to provide valuable insights and guidance to researchers and faculty members. Domain knowledge ensures that mentors can offer relevant advice, spot emerging trends, and help shape research projects in a way that aligns with current industry or academic developments.

Another key suggestion from Prof. B.S. Murty is to compensate mentors with a respectful honorarium. This honorarium should reflect the value of their time, expertise, and contributions to the institution's research initiatives. Offering a fair honorarium demonstrates that the institution recognizes the mentors' professional experience and is committed to fostering a culture of respect and appreciation for their work. It also serves as an incentive for mentors to remain engaged and motivated in their roles. He recommended that each department within the R&D framework have at least one designated mentor. This approach ensures that every department has access to a dedicated mentor who understands the unique challenges and opportunities within that field. By following these suggestions, the institution can establish a robust mentorship system within its R&D department. The presence of knowledgeable mentors, equitable compensation, and a dedicated mentor for each department can significantly contribute to the success and growth of the institution's research.

Meanwhile, Prof. B.S. Murty proposed constituting committees that include external experts to discuss and analyze these parameters in detail. The inclusion of external members would provide valuable insights and a broader perspective, ensuring that the analysis is comprehensive and aligned with best practices. This collaborative approach would facilitate a thorough examination of each parameter, leading to a more effective and judicious assessment process.
